Theme

The theme of the 2017 conference in Wuppertal is:

“Sustainable Entrepreneurial Ecosystems: How do contextual factors support and constrain sustainable entrepreneurial activities in a regional ecosystem?”

For decades, economic development and environmental protection have been viewed as a zero-sum game of social wealth (Cohen & Winn 2004). Recently, sustainable entrepreneurship has gained prominence as entrepreneurs increasingly place sustainability rather than profitability at the core of their business models. Sustainable entrepreneurship is primarily concerned with economic, social and environmental consequences, thereby creating a win-win situation for the economic development and environmental protection. Nevertheless, the research field of sustainable entrepreneurship is still in its infancy. A lack of research can be observed in particular with regard to the contextual factors of sustainable entrepreneurship (Acs, Autio & Szerb 2014). In this context an entrepreneurial ecosystem can be defined as “a dynamic community of interdependent actors (entrepreneurs, suppliers, buyers, governments etc.) and system-level institutional, informational and socioeconomic contexts” (Audretsch & Belitski, 2016, p. 4). Entrepreneurial ecosystems play an important role for the foundation and growth of enterprises (Isenberg 2010). However, little is known about how ecosystems have to be composed in order to benefit sustainable, entrepreneurial activities. Several interesting questions can be derived: How do stakeholders facilitate the development of sustainable enterprises? How are ecological, economic and social aspects connected in entrepreneurial activities? How does the digitalization influence the development of sustainable entrepreneurial ecosystems? What role does financing play for the creation of sustainable ecosystems? How does sustainable entrepreneurship influence firm performance? Findings in form of empirical and theoretical contributions regarding these and other questions in the context of “sustainable entrepreneurship” are not only relevant for the academic field of entrepreneurship but also for management practice.
